

The Hale Barn

This barn, built by Martin North in 1797, is the last remaining image of a Connecticut upland dairy barn along the approaches to Colebrook Center. The last farmer to operate this farm was Mason Hale, whose descendants sold to the Colebrook Land Conservancy, who renovated it so as to preserve and perpetuate the atmosphere and aesthetics of this rural intersection.